COMMUNICATION.

*To the Honorable,
The Legislature of Maryland:*

The communication of Messrs. Sprigg and Tilghman, in reply to that of the undersigned, has this moment been received by him, and he deeply regrets that the session is too near its close, to afford time for an investigation of the facts at issue between those gentlemen and himself. He can only say, that he is prepared to prove, in any manner which the legislature now, or at any future time may direct, the truth of every word of his former communication.

He is prepared to prove, that the majority of the agents, have purposely, wilfully and deliberately disobeyed the commands of the legislature; and that Messrs. Sprigg and Tilghman, in their report as agents, have suppressed the facts, which would have rendered that disobedience manifest.

He is prepared to prove, that if the act of 1844, chapter 281, is to be carried practically into effect, and is to result in the completion of the canal, it has been owing solely and entirely to the efforts of the undersigned, in which he has had no aid, and but little encouragement from any other quarter.

He is prepared to prove, that if compensation is due to any one for services rendered and sacrifices made, in promoting measures for the completion of the canal, it is not to the majority of the agents.

He is prepared to prove, that the important, and at this time extremely interesting branch of the public service, over which the majority of the agents preside, is in a suffering condition, and needs the most energetic reform.

Upon those portions of the reply, which attribute to the undersigned purposes which he never entertained, and which comment upon those purposes as if they had been admitted by him, he has no remarks to make.

WM. PRICE.

All which is respectfully submitted,
CUMBERLAND, March 8th, 1848.
